

JUST PUBLISHED!

Responding to Violent Conflicts and Humanitarian Crises is available in hardback and ebook formats from Palgrave Macmillan, Amazon, and your local bookstore.

Designed to help the major organizations involved in international crises—the military, civilian agencies, UN, and nonprofits—work together more effectively and efficiently.

- Introduces the institutions that engage in bringing peace and relief to societies mired in violent conflicts and humanitarian crises
- Is intended primarily for those serving in the field and those training practitioners to deploy
- Will also be useful to students, military and agency trainees, and headquarters personnel

Numerous third parties continue to undertake peacebuilding, stabilization, and humanitarian relief measures around the globe. With the return to multilateralism, these interventions will be even more complex, with more actors than ever before.

Because these institutions—the military, civilian agencies, UN, and nonprofits—have distinct goals as well as overlapping mandates, they do not always collaborate effectively, due in part to a lack of familiarity with how the other institutions are organized, make decisions, and act on the ground.

Bringing together multiple perspectives, this guide provides insights and analysis about the nature and roles these third parties play as well as their goals and challenges. It will help students and trainees better understand these institutions, and will aid policymakers and practitioners to take more effective action.

Contents: Foreword by Jane Holl Lute; Introduction, Pamela Aall and Dan Snodderly; International Organizations, Jonas Claes; Non-Governmental Organizations, Pamela Aall and Jeffrey Helsing; Civilian Government Agencies, Lauren Van Metre; The U.S. Military, Jim Ruf, Kelly Mader-Schounour, Stephen Spinder, Kpatcha Massina; For More Information; Index

Responding to Violent Conflicts and Humanitarian Crises: A Guide to Participants

Pamela Aall and Dan Snodderly, editors

Foreword by Jane Holl Lute, UN Special Envoy on the Cyprus Dispute

Palgrave Macmillan, January 2021

<https://www.palgrave.com/us/book/9783030594626>

